

Document Retention Policy (the Policy)

1. Introduction

In carrying out services, the Council collects information internally, from external organisations and individuals and stores a vast number of data/information/images (the document(s)) and personal data. The documents can take various forms such as letters received from third parties, copy letters which have been sent out, invoices, completed application forms, plans/drawings, financial records, registers, contracts/deeds, e-mail communications (and any attachments), photographs, tape recordings, staffing details, archived material and CCTV images. The records can be retained as 'hard' paper records or in electronic form.

Data Protection legislation (the Legislation) requires the Council to have clearly defined policies including a consent policy (the Consent policy) and procedures for the retention/disposal of the documents, images (see below) and personal data and that these actions are documented. Where any conflict exists the Legislation Consent policy takes precedence over the Policy.

Retention of specific documents may be necessary to fulfil statutory or other regulatory requirement, evidence events/agreements in the case of disputes, meet operational need, and to achieve the preservation of documents of historic or other value, and for legislative reasons. Also, the destruction of documents could cause the council difficulty in defending claims, operational problems, reputational damage and failure to comply with the Freedom of Information legislation.

In having a policy, it is significant that the Legislation sets out rules regarding retention and destruction of documents and, for example, requires personal data processed must not be kept for longer than necessary for that purpose unless the appropriate consent has been obtained.

2. Purpose

Within the terms of the Legislation the purpose is to provide a Council policy to decide whether the documents should either be:

- retained – and if so in what format, and for what period; or
- destroyed – and if so when and by what method.

This policy is not concerned with the disposal/retention of unused materials.

3. The Retention/Disposal Policy

A decision whether to retain or dispose of the document should be taken in accordance with this policy and the Legislation.

Essentially no document should be disposed of unless all the considerations in the retention considerations criteria checklist in Appendix 1 and the Retention Schedules in Appendix 2.

Where a retention period has expired in relation to the document a review should always be carried out before a final decision is made to dispose of that document.

If a decision is taken to dispose of a document or set of documents, consideration must be given to the method of disposal.

4. Disposal and Action to be taken

Disposal can be achieved in many ways, for example:

- Confidential waste—making available for collection by a designated refuse collection service,
- Physical destruction on site – for example shredding of paper records,
- Deletion – for computer files,
- Migration of documents to external body.

Under no circumstances should paper documents containing personal data or confidential information be deposited in refuse tips. To do so could result in the unauthorised disclosure of such information to others and render the Council liable to prosecution or other enforcement action under the Legislation. Such documents should be destroyed in the office (e.g. by shredding) or placed in specially marked 'Confidential Waste' refuse bins.

It should be noted that the Information Commissioner's Office has advised that if steps are taken to make data impossible to retrieve, then this will be regarded deletion.

Migration of documents to a third party (other than for destruction or recycling) is unlikely to be an option in most cases. However, this method of disposal will be relevant where documents or records are of historic interest and/or have intrinsic value.

Disposal must be documented by keeping a record of the document disposed of, the date and method of disposal, and the officer who authorised disposal. The documenting of disposal is particularly important due to the Freedom of Information Act and a requirement in the Legislation.

5. Data Protection

The legislation does not set out any specific minimum or maximum periods for retaining personal data. However, personal data shall not be kept for longer than is necessary for that purpose or those purposes.

In practice, the Council will need to:

- review the length of time it keeps personal data;
- consider the purpose or purposes and for how long the information is held;

-securely delete information that is no longer needed for this purpose or these purposes; and

-update, archive or securely delete information if it goes out of date.

Under the Legislation personal data processed for any purpose must not be kept for longer than is necessary for that purpose. In other words, retaining the documents that contain personal data beyond the length of time necessary for the purpose for which that data was obtained is unlawful.

No document should be marked for disposal unless due regard has first been given to the Legislation Consent policy and which, as mentioned, takes precedence over the Policy, the five Key Disposal/ Retention considerations detailed below, and the Retention Schedules contained in Appendix 2.

Appendix 1

Retention Considerations.

1. Has the document been appraised?

The nature/contents of the document being considered for disposal should be ascertained. No document/s should be marked or designated for disposal unless this has been done. It follows that the above can only be achieved by carrying out a physical inspection and appraisal.

If appraisal is inadvertently overlooked or carried out negligently, the Council runs the very real risk of important documents being destroyed in error.

2. Is retention/destruction required to fulfil statutory or other regulatory requirements?

There is specific legislation that stipulates mandatory retention periods for some local government documents. The legislation that affects retention periods include the following: The Legislation, financial legislation, and various local government statutes.

3. Is retention required to evidence events in the case of a dispute?

On occasions, the Council becomes involved in disputes with third parties. Such as disputes, if not satisfactorily resolved, can result in the dissatisfied party bringing legal proceedings against the Council. Conversely, the Council may wish to institute legal proceedings against an individual or organisation e.g. to recover an unpaid debt, or in respect of faulty workmanship. Where a dispute arises, or litigation has been commenced it is important that the Council has access to all correspondence and other documentation that is relevant to the matter. Without such, there is the danger that the Council's position will be compromised, an unmeritorious claim might succeed, or the Council may be unable to assert its legal entitlements.

Further, the limitation legislation specifies time limits for commencing litigation. The starting point therefore, is that the retention period is the length of time that must elapse before a claim is barred. The position is further complicated if a child or a person lacking mental capacity is involved.

4. Is retention required to meet the operational needs of the service?

In some cases, retention may be desirable (whether permanent or otherwise) even though no minimum retention period applies or has expired. A professional judgement needs to be made as to the usefulness of a document and at all times taking full note of the legislation and the consent given by an individual.

5. Is retention required because the document or record is of historic interest or intrinsic value?

In most cases this consideration will not be applicable. However, some documents currently held by the Council may be of historic interest and/or have some monetary value. Where it is suspected that the document falls within this description appropriate enquires should always be made before taking any further action.

Even if the document is of historic or monetary value, disposal rather than retention by the Council, may well be the appropriate option.

The Retention Schedules—what needs to be kept, for how long and the method of disposal.

Note

As mentioned Data Protection including GDPR consent granted documents (see Consent policy) and which takes priority over the Policy.
